DETAILED ACTION

The amendment filed July 2, 2008 has been entered.

Claims 1 and 6 are currently amended.

Claims 9-11 are cancelled.

Claims 1-8 are pending and are examined on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Li et al (US PGPub 2002/0078475 in IDS) taken with Peyret et al (WO 95/20046 in IDS), as stated in the last office action.

4. The claims are drawn to a transgenic plant comprising a plant transformation vector that is comprising a nucleotide sequence that encodes or is complementary to a sequence that encodes a aconitase polypeptide comprising the amino acid sequence of SEQ ID NO: 2 or an ortholog thereof whereby the transgenic plant has a high oil phenotype relative to control plants.

5. Li et al teach optimizing plants for seed oil production by transforming a plant with a gene encoding an enzyme in the beta-oxidation pathway, including aconitase (see paragraphs 16-17 of the Detailed Description, for example).

6. Li et al do not specifically teach an isolated gene encoding aconitase activity.

7. Peyret et al teach a nucleic acid sequence encoding a aconitase having 87% sequence similarity to a nucleic acid encoding SEQ ID NO: 2.

8. Given the recognition of those of ordinary skill in the art of the desirability of producing a transgenic plant having a high oil phenotype by transforming a plant with a gene encoding an enzyme in the beta-oxidation pathway, such as aconitase, as taught by Li et al, it would have been obvious to use the method of Li et al and to modify it by substituting the aconitase coding sequence taught by Peyret et al, which would be considered an ortholog of the aconitase of SEQ ID NO: 2. Thus the claimed invention would have been prima facie obvious as a whole to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time it was made, especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

9. Applicants' arguments filed July 2, 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants argue that Li et al teach that a decrease in aconitase would affect beta-oxidation and increase oil production, stating that Li et al teach away from the present invention of increasing aconitase expression to increase oil production. The Examiner maintains that the examples do not demonstrate an increase in aconitase expression, and therefore it is unclear that the increase in oil production is due to an increase in expression of the gene. It appears that the results could be due to cosuppression of the gene. The evidence for non-obviousness must be commensurate with the scope of the claims.

Conclusion

10. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

No claims are allowed.
